

A friend fouls you. Is it OK to say, "You owe me one?"

Not really. The rules make the game fair for all sailors. You may not be affected much by your friend's foul, but excusing the foul penalizes other sailors that might have gained while your friend is taking a penalty.

Also, excusing a competitor erodes respect for the rules, which is the foundation of our sport.